

behind the wall safely—except your husband. He was the last man to go back, making sure everybody else was safe, and they caught up with him. When they tortured him, he shouted out that he loved you and your daughter. They burned out his eyes, and then they cut him up into pieces in front of the wall, while you watched, and then they ate him, and threw his bones in their fire. That night, you sneaked out of the pueblo and rescued his bones from the fire, even though you got burned doing it. Then for a whole day and night, you made medicine over his bones. Then you led your village in a surprise attack at night, when the murderers were sleeping, and you killed them all. And then you put a curse on the demon. You couldn't destroy the demon, but you cast a powerful spell on him that makes him a desert demon. He is confined to the desert, and burns there, and he is blind. He suffers there, and he will suffer because of your curse until the end of the world. He hates you.

The demon can only see by looking through the eyes of animals, which is very painful for him. You saw the two animals, which were inhabited by good spirits, angels. What you did not see is the little animals, snakes and lizards, the desert demon was using to look at you. The two good animals followed you with love, and stamped on the snakes and lizards, and tried to lead you out of danger. The desert demon is powerful, and means to harm you, and got evil men to do that. The desert demon would have had them kill you. You got out just in time.

When you were speaking "Tiwa," you were casting spells in the old language to keep the desert demon away. You were able to remember that much, under stress.

It doesn't matter what kind of animals they were. They were whatever animals the angels found conveniently nearby. And it doesn't matter who the men who tried to hurt you were. They were under the influence of the desert demon. That is your true enemy. You should take down the references to the bad men from your website. You don't want to attract them. You are not yet strong enough to resist them successfully, but you will be after a while.—Mary

That is the explanation. The medicine man says that now that he knows who you are, he will tell you his secret, spirit name: [REDACTED]. You can call him that. You must keep out of his circle, and that means to stop sending your spirit out to contact him directly. He knows you have been doing that, and you must stop. You must not reveal to anyone that you know him, or us, or ask about him from anyone. You can contact us, and we will contact him, but keep inside your circle and do not contact him directly or indirectly, in the spirit world or this. You are involved in a spirit world war, and powerful spirits are straining at the bounds that sorcerers put on them. Your great deeds of past lives have brought you both enemies and friends. We are also in danger, just from associating with you about this, but [REDACTED] will protect us. Stay only on email. Do not send your spirit out to contact us, as the spirits will trace you. You can't contact him because your spirits will get out of balance with contact with his spirits, and he is fighting his own spirit wars. When you are dealing with spirits, and especially demons, you have to treat it as if you are handling nitroglycerine. You have to respect the rules, completely. If you don't respect the rules, bad things will happen. There are complicated rules, and the must not be broken.

The desert demon and his allies have interfered in your life, terribly, and one of the things they did to hurt you is to make you not remember who you are, and what your powers are. You are a spiritual leader, and healer, very powerful, and good, powerful spirits want you to help them. That is something you are supposed to do in this life.

There are four things you should do. He made us repeat these things several times, until he was sure we remembered all of them.

First, you need protection, and he can't give it to you directly. The mortal enemy of the desert demon and his Aztec allies is Our Lady of Guadalupe, and you will find her very helpful. He says you should show devotion to her. She is the Mexican form of the Mother Goddess. It doesn't matter what religion you choose to practice. She is a real spirit, very powerful, and you should ask for her help and protection.
